Made To Hold Up A Man
Twice In A Night

Henry Monroe Has An Exciting Experience

While Returning Home On Monday Evening

Got Away From One Bold
Hold Up Man

Only To Be Accosted By A
Second Man

Evidences of hold-up men have again come to light in Mt. Vernon in different portions of the west end of the city. Since the outbreak several months ago, no hold ups have been reported until on Monday night when several attempts were made by one man to arrange his plans for a successful hold-up. Mr. Henry Monroe, residing on South Jefferson street, and who employed as conductor on the Mt. Vernon Electric Ry., often works on a night run and does not get home until a late hour. This was the case on Monday evening when Mr. Monroe was going home at about 11:30 o'clock and had reached Adams street, where he intended to turn south, he saw a man standing in the shadow. This did not look good so Monroe went on down a block further to Jefferson street and the man had passed down the alley parallel with him and was waiting at that end of the alley. Passing on west another block, Mr. Monroe borrowed a revolver of a friend and when Harrison street was reached, he turned south and walked down the middle of the street and sure enough, the man was there and ordered Monroe to halt. Being in the middle of the road with a good gun in his hand, he evidently thought that it would be too easy a way for a man to get his money so he ran swiftly and did not heed his calls to halt.

This was not the end of the hold up business for the night and the conductor encountered still another foot pad before he reached home. South Harrison street is a very dark after Gambier street is passed and it was here that the second man made an attempt to get in his handwork. Monroe was very watchful after his first experience and it was not long until a man was seen to be standing behind a large square post, which is used by a family residing near there, as a brace for a wire clothes line. It was necessary to pass near the man so with revolver in hand, the conductor marched along apparently without the least thought of molestation. The hall from the man came as soon as he was opposite and ordered Monroe to throw up his hands. Not wishing to part with his ready cash, he did throw up his hands but not in the way that the robber expected. The revolver was brought to a level with the man's body and was discharged. The aim was bad and the bullet did not find its mark, but it had the desired effect. The would-be robber whirled and ran with all his speed and escaped and no further attempts were made to get him.

Authorities To Investigate
Infantile Paralysis

Coshocton Times
Health Officer Abbott stated to the Times Tuesday morning that he intends to bring to the attention of the city board of health, the existence of infantile paralysis in Coshocton. The board meets Wednesday evening and he will ask that immediate action be taken in the matter. It is likely that the board will immediately communicate with the State Board of Health as to the manner of isolating patients. Local doctors disagree whether or not strict quarantine should be enforced as some declare the malady to be contagious and others deny it. It is admitted that the disease is a baffling one and for a hundred years its treatment has been largely experimental. Children above eight years old are rarely attacked with it. The Coshocton County Medical Society Thursday afternoon will devote considerable time to the discussion of infantile paralysis.

There have been two cases thus far reported in Coshocton. It caused the death of little Mabel Monto, aged 3, last Friday and Rodgers Thompson, 6, now has it. He will likely recover but may not regain the use of his left arm.

KENYON

Football Players Are Somewhat Crippled

Gambier, O., Sept. 28.—Chester M. Cable, who was elected to captain the Kenyon eleven this year, surprised and delighted the whole college by announcing today that he would return to school.

Marty, state tennis champion and strong bidder for the position of tackle on the team, severely sprained his ankle last evening while in a scrimmage. This will keep him out of the game for several weeks.

Donald Henry, who has been in the star halfback of Kenyon eleven for the past three years, suffered a wrenched knee at practice yesterday and will be unable to play football any more. Henry was considerably hampered last year by his weak knee but doctored it up this summer in the hope of being able to play this year. His loss to the squad is keenly felt and will impair the strength of the team to great degree.

Troubles Caused The President Of Berea College

To Resign His Position And Study Law

His Abandonment Of The Ministry For Law

Surprised His Friends
Throughout The State

Until Domestic Troubles
Came To Light

The question of a wife or a career was at the back of the resignation of Rev. Dr. Robt. L. Waggoner, as president of Baldwin University.

This became known Monday when it was learned that Dr. Waggoner had enrolled as a member of the Cleveland Law School and that he had been in marital difficulties for three years.

When Dr. Waggoner accepted the presidency of Baldwin, he said:

"In accepting the presidency of Baldwin University, I do it with an eye single to God's work and His calling. While to me it means much, I do it, looking to Him and to you for assistance in making Baldwin University a power for good in the community."

Dr. Waggoner spoke to the members of his alma mater as they gathered at the alumni banquet table in the parlors of the English Methodist Episcopal church in Berea, O., on the night of June 10, 1908. And while all others were overjoyed as the words of acceptance fell from the speaker's lips, he alone looked sad, for he was thinking of one who from the first had urged him not to take the position tendered him by the trustees of the institution. That one was Mrs. Lillian Meacham Waggoner, his wife.

The election of Dr. G. A. Reeder of Mt. Vernon, former superintendent of the Cleveland district of the North Ohio Conference, to succeed Dr. Waggoner came as a surprise to even the outgoing president's most intimate friends. "I believe my stepping down will be for the best interests of the school," was the only comment Dr. Waggoner had to make when asked concerning his resignation.

When in the spring of 1908, Dr. Geo. B. Rogers resigned as president of Baldwin, the efforts of the trustees and members of the alumni were directed in the choice of the "one best man" for the position. That man ought to be a graduate of the institution, they said. Session after session was held, and finally the choice fell upon Dr. Waggoner. The latter was then pastor of the First Methodist Episcopal church of Tiffin, O., which charge he had filled for five years.

Mrs. Waggoner liked the social atmosphere of that city and was not desirous of leaving. Dr. Waggoner's salary as president was less than his salary as pastor of the Tiffin church.

He sought a chamber in a relative's home in Berea and there, on his knees, he asked guidance. And while he prayed came a telegram from Tiffin urging him not to accept. It was signed by his wife. He visited the home of her mother in Berea and talked the matter over with her.

The faculty, alumni and friends of the school had already seated themselves at the banquet table but the chair provided for Dr. Waggoner was vacant. After wrestling in prayer, which lasted for hours, he decided his place was at the head of the university, and when he entered the banquet room he was greeted with a mighty shout.

From that day on Dr. and Mrs. Waggoner lived apart. For several months she continued to reside at Tiffin. Then their household effects were placed in storage in Berea and Mrs. Waggoner took up her residence with her mother. They were seldom seen in each other's company.

Shortly after the opening of school Dr. Waggoner took up the study of law in the Cleveland law department of Baldwin University. For two years he continued to teach and study. Since his retirement from the university he is devoting all his time to his senior year in law. He has given up his residence in Berea.

Dr. Waggoner was a member of the class of 1892 at Baldwin. Among the pastorates filled by him were those at Brooklyn, Lakewood, Wellington and Tiffin. He is known throughout Ohio as an able platform speaker and lecturer. At the age of 44 he has, at least temporarily, abandoned his ministry to seek admission to the bar of this state.

PRISONERS

Make Their Escape From
The Reformatory

Mansfield, O., Sept. 28.—Joseph Sterns, sentenced from Cuyahoga county; George C. Wilson of Cleveland, but sentenced from Auglaize county, and John McDonnell from Lucas county, made their escape from the Ohio state reformatory last evening by sawing a bar in a general bathroom which was supposed to be inaccessible to the inmates except on Saturdays. The escape was well planned, as clever ruses were resorted to by the trio to secure permission to get to that section of the institution.

They are believed to have had outside assistance, as Sterns received a visit on Sunday from a woman purporting to be his sister from Cleveland. All three had prison records previous to their commitment to the reformatory.

FOOTBALL

Season Opens At Kenyon
Next Saturday

Gambier, O., Sept. 28.—Kenyon opens the football season next Saturday afternoon playing Otterbein. From the showing made by the Westerville boys against Ohio State last Saturday there is no doubt but that an exciting game will take place. Also it is the first chance of the football enthusiasts of Mt. Vernon to witness the game under the new rules. The game will be much more spectacular than before and should afford the spectators more excitement.

Kenyon team is better than it has been for a long time and Coach Pierce expects to turn out a great team.

The students are looking forward to this game not only because it is the first, but because the Westerville aggregation is stronger than ever before and a hard fight is expected.

Y. M. C. A. NOTES

The open house at the Y. M. C. A. Tuesday evening was very well attended and the program much better than the anticipations of even the social committee. During the evening the orchestra rendered a splendid informal program. Miss Gertrude Fleming entertained the audience with two beautiful solos. Miss Fleming is rapidly developing into a most excellent musician and the association men heartily appreciate her assistance on their program.

Bowling and pool were among the most attractive games of the evening—the bowling in particular, since the alleys have been placed in such splendid condition has come to be very popular.

Three games of volley ball, between two selected teams enthusiastically entertained the audience for an hour, after which Dr. David R. Francis, the new pastor of the Christian church, enthusiastically entertained all of the men for a half hour with his witticisms, stories and humor. Dr. Francis is a very exceptional speaker and has a spirit that appeals to men.

Mr. A. B. Jones had charge of the refreshments and so perfectly pleased his friends that his supply was exhausted very early.

The evening can easily be pronounced one of the best of the kind that the association has yet held, thus the new social committee has established themselves in the hearts of the association members and friends. There will be other things doing right along.

All young men who are interested in night school work are asked to meet at the association next Monday night for the purpose of assisting the committee to locate the men in the classes they desire to enter and making arrangements for the work needed by all. The instructors will be present at this time to meet their pupils.
